Free Romantic Love Letter

I think you'll like this Free Romantic Love Letter,

"Whatever Love is, It's What We've Got".

It talks about passion and shared feelings not given or shared with anybody else and the satisfaction of a touch never duplicated by someone else. Read the rest of it below.

Love,

I'm sure you know that I've found satisfaction in your touch and that I crave being close you when we're apart. But there's so much more to our love than that and I am now connected to you in ways that are difficult to express.

For instance, I enjoy the moments when we talk, because whenever we do I learn a little bit more about you every time. Every tiny glimpse into who you are is precious to me.

What we share is not a passing thing. We have a wonderful future ahead of us. We both know that life is troubled by difficulties. The important thing is not avoiding them, because, while a certain amount of prevention is possible, problems will always arise.

It's how we face them that counts. We both know that the path ahead can be rough in some spots, but I know that we will make it through. The proof of love is not in the good times, but in the bad ones. I will stay by your side through whatever life brings.

But love isn't just about feelings and even staying power isn't enough to define it. So what is it that we share? All I know is that when I look at your face, when I look into your eyes, something in me says, "Here's the one." Love is just... love. And it's what we share. Now and forever.

Love,
